

The Fourth Annual "Protecting Critical Information Infrastructures" Conference and Exhibition

19th March 2002

Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre, London

MANAGING 'Information Risk in a Changed World' Solutions for Survival

In the aftermath of September 11th 81% of US CEO's have acknowledged that their existing crisis management plans were inadequate. Where does the UK stand? Where does YOUR organisation stand? Where do YOU stand?

Are you certain that YOU are sufficiently aware of the current situation - both internally and externally? Remember this is not something that can be delegated!

What is the impact on YOUR organisation if a part of the infrastructure framework is removed - and what can YOU do to minimise the impact, and also to ensure that you have not been the "weakest link" that enabled an attack on others?

This conference will recognise the needs and benefits of identifying, quantifying and controlling Risk. It has five main sections, each of vital importance:

- 1 UK PLC TODAY - the Government's stance on the responsibilities of Central Government, the Private Sector and the rest of the Public Sector. The Concept of the National Resilience Framework, presented for the first time by the Civil Contingencies Secretariat, and Communities of Interest.
- 2 THE THREAT - where does it come from, and the many guises in which it can appear. The direct effects within "Communities of Interest" and their far wider repercussions.
- 3 MANAGEMENT OF RISK - decision challenges compared between sectors, and between sizes of organisation. Showing that this applies to us all. Introducing a new way for organisations to share information - without loss of confidentiality.
- 4 RECOMMENDATIONS FOR ACTION - you will take away a checklist!
- 5 SOLUTIONS - an integral part of the day is the Partner Showcase where you will be able to discuss points made in each Conference Session with experts who provide solutions, and where you will at least learn the questions to ask when you return to your organisation!

In association with UK Online for Business, Symantec Corporation (Northern Europe), and uniquely supported by the Office of the e-Envoy, NISCC and IAAC. This conference will be of direct benefit to you and your organisation, providing real solutions pertinent to business continuity and all management associated with risk decision making.
